

Harry Charlton

September 12, 1912 - October 22, 2010

Harry Charlton, 98, died Friday, October 22, 2010 at the Good Samaritan Village in Sioux Falls. Harry Guy Charlton was born on a farm north of Worthing, South Dakota on September 12, 1912, the son of Aden and Mary (Peterson) Charlton. He moved to Lennox with his family where he attended Lennox Public School. He then learned the welding trade and began welding with his Father. On April 28, 1934 he was united in marriage to Blanche Urban in Sioux Falls. They lived in Worthing their entire married life. He owned and operated Charlton's Repair Shop in Worthing for 63 years. His wife died on November 19, 2002, ending a marriage of over 68 years. Besides his parents and his wife he was preceded in death by two brothers, Calvin Charlton and Ralph Charlton and one sister: Cora Greene. Grateful for having shared his life are his two daughters: Colleen Sexton and her husband, James, of Sioux Falls and Linda Bakkene and her husband, Carroll, of Cottage Grove, Minnesota; eight grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

“ Steve and I are so sorry to hear of Harry's passing. Steve has told me many stories of Harry and his welding shop. He said Harry taught him many thing on welding he has used and is still using and has taught our son. He was a very talented person and always took time for others. He will be missed by many people.

We want you to know you and your families are in our thought and prayers.

“ When I was growing up on our farm near Worthing, South Dakota, there were many times I would go with my Dad, Arnfinn Stene, to Harry Charlton's welding shop in Worthing.

Harry's outgoing personality and talented welding were something to behold.

Colleen and Linda, you and your family are in my thoughts and prayers. It is my hope that pleasant memories will heal the void created by the passing of your parents.
